SHAM DIAMONDS.

They Are More Common Than Is Generally Imagined.

A point in favor of the diamond is that its imitation is more or less easy of detection. A real diamond cannot be touched with a file, and a false one, though it can be made to scratch glass, will not cut quartz. Its brilliancy also fades, while the real diamond is absolutely permanent. It reflects all the light falling on its posterior surface at an angle of incidence greater than 24 degrees 13 minutes, but its counterfeit only reflects half this light.

But the imitation of the diamond may be more common than is imagined. There is a good story of one of the famous M. Bourguignon's customers. A lady went into the well known Paris atelier of sham gems and asked the price of a parure in exact imitation of the one she produced. "Was M. Bourguignon sure that the imitation would be perfect? Had he observed the peculiar beauty and purity of the stones?" The reply came: "Be calm, madame. The same workman shall have the job. You may rely upon an exact counterpart of his former work."

Pulverized quartz is used for these stones, and it is supplied in the sand from the forests of Fontainebleau. Hundreds of men and numbers of women and girls are employed in the Bourguignon business, and they make not only diamonds, but pearls, emeralds, rubies and sapphires. The girls line the false pearls with fish scales, and wax, polish and color with mineral the other "stones."—Gentleman's Magazine.

His Excellent Memory.

"John," she said, looking at him severely, "did you know that yesterday was the anniversary of our wedding?"

"Certainly, my darling, certainly," he replied, pretending that he wasn't at all surprised. "Didn't they send that little thing out from the jeweler's that I ordered for you? I shall go around today and see about it. Confound those people, anyway! They promised they'd send it yesterday without fail. If there's anything that makes me mad, it's to have people lie to me about a thing of that kind. I'd have gone somewhere else if they had said they couldn't have it ready in time. Well, I'll make such a kick when I get into town today that they won't forget next time, I'll bet. Yes, I remembered it, my dear. I thought of you all day and of that other happy day. What a glorious—why, my darling, what are you crying for?"

"Oh, you liar!" she sobbed. "It isn't till next month, and you're deceiving me! Go away! Don't you dare to touch me!"

"Confound women anyhow!" he said as he went down the front steps. "They're never happy unless they're making trouble for themselves!"—Chicago Herald.

The Origin of Speech.

The dog can emit four or five different notes, each indicative of a special mental condition and each fully understood by its companions. The barn door fowl is credited with from nine to twelve distinct vocal sounds, each capable of a special interpretation by its fellows. The gestures of the lower animals are either facial, like the grimaces of the monkey, or changes of bodily attitude, like those of a dog. After citing the above mentioned facts the president of the anthropological section of the British association in a recent address went on to say that he thought it might not unreasonably be inferred that the remote progenitors of man relied upon equally lowly means of communication and that from such humble beginnings speech has been slowly evolved. Even yet we find gestures, facial expressions and certain vocal sounds often more eloquent than words.—Youth's Companion.

Prepared For All Emergencies.

It is proverbial, of course, that the French shopman always hopes to make twice as much as he should out of the Englishman and twice as much again out of the American. An English tourist who knew the French shopman, though he did not know his language, adopted a simple expedient for transacting his business abroad. He carried a card into every shop he entered on one side of which was written, "Comblen?" (How much?) and on the other, "Je vous donnerai la moitié" (I will give you half). It is said that he never found further conversation necessary.

Tut Tut.

"The word 'reviver' spells the same backward or forward."

It was the frivolous man who spoke. "Can you think of another?"

The serious man scowled up from his newspaper.

"Tut tut!" he cried contemptuously. And they rode on in silence.

Absurd.

First Neighbor—I am afraid my children bother you.

Second Neighbor—What nonsense! Why, they are not over to my house more than eighteen hours out of the twenty-four!

The Old Man's Advantages.

A man past fifty can do with less sleep than younger men. He can endure greater steady and prolonged strain. He can bear his burden day after day with less need of recreation. The young man can "sprint," but he cannot "stay" like the man with brain grown iron and nerves steel by many years of training.

Elderly men are less temptable. They are of fixed moral habit. Appetite and passion are under control. For better or for worse they are a calculable quantity, with slight variations to be taken into account.

Elderly men are more loyal as friends if they are friends. Their attachment to a cause or a commercial house is less changeable. They have, moreover, given bonds for good behavior in the persons of grown families whose respect is to them dearer than life. They know the difficulty of repairing mistakes.

Elderly men actually have experience. The older man best reads character. He is the wisest to select agents.—Washington Times.

Nebraska "Bug Eaters."

A Nebraska judge was asked how it was that the citizens of his state were nicknamed "bug eaters."

"The name is applied to us sometimes in the east," answered the judge frankly. "It originated many years ago in a peculiar way, incident to a speech. Back in 1874 a swarm of grasshoppers descended upon our fair state and despoiled everything. Crops were swept away before this army of insects, and the people were left destitute. An appeal went up for aid, and some of our eloquent Nebraskans journeyed east to plead our cause. One of these eloquent citizens in a flight of speech declared that the voracious grasshoppers had even eaten the tires off wagon wheels and were devouring the railroad tracks. 'Why, our people have nothing but grasshoppers and bugs,' was the climax of this orator's speech," exclaimed the judge.

"And now you have the history of the sobriquet of 'bug eaters,'" he concluded.—Washington Post.

An Old Superstition.

Superstition connected with the seventh child of a seventh child is commemorated by a tombstone in a village churchyard near Bridgewater, Somerset. This inscription runs: "Sacred to the memory of Doctress Anne Pounsberry, who departed this life Dec. 11, 1813, aged seventy-three years. Stand still and consider the wondrous works of God." Doctress was not merely an epithet, but a baptismal name, for she was a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter and was therefore credited with powers of healing. She practiced in herbs and charms. For king's evil this was her prescription: "Take the legs of a toad. Bake and grind them to powder with pestle and mortar. Place the powder in a bag around the neck of the sufferer."—London Chronicle.

Antiquity of Glass.

So far as research has been able to determine glass was in use 2,000 years before the birth of Christ and was even then not in its infancy by any manner of means. In the Slade collection at the British museum there is the head of a lion molded in glass, bearing the name of an Egyptian king of the eleventh dynasty. This is the oldest specimen of pure glass bearing anything like a date now known to exist. The invention now known as "bleezing," the mode of varnishing pottery with a thin film of glass, is believed to date back to the first Egyptian dynasty. Proof of this is found in the pottery beads, glass glazed, found in the tombs of the age above referred to.

Weeping Trees.

The literature of "weeping trees" is enormous, much of it being plainly mythical, but there is a large basis of fact upon which most of these marvelous stories rest. Many travelers have described the famous "rain tree" of Padradoca, Isle of Ferro. John Cockburn in 1735 described a tree at Vera Pas, Central America, from which pure water continually dripped from every leaf and branch.

Grief and Thrift.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich once received a pathetic letter in a feminine hand announcing the death of a little daughter and asking if he would not send in his own handwriting a verse or two from "Babbie Bell" to assuage the grief of the household.

Aldrich sent the whole poem and not long after saw it displayed in the shop of an autograph dealer, with a good, round price attached thereto.

Early Birds.

The green finch is the earliest riser. It pipes as early as half past 1 in the morning. The blackcap begins at half past 2. It is nearly 4 o'clock before the blackbird appears. It is heard half an hour before the thrush, and the chirp of the robin begins about the same length of time before that of the wren. The house sparrow and the tom-tit take the last stage of the list.

A Domestic Blend.

A resourceful young matron had a small dinner party. Covers were laid for six, and the dinner was charming. The red wine was not too cold, the white wine not too warm and the black coffee a masterpiece. At the beginning of the end of the dinner a cordial was served. It happened to be Creme Yvette, and when the husband tasted it he put down his glass with a look of anguish and was about to speak. His wife's eye silenced him. Nobody took more than the first sip of the liqueur. After the last guest had departed the husband braved his wife's eye and spoke.

"My dear," said he, "what in the name of all unspeakable things was the matter with that liqueur?"

His young wife smiled triumphantly. "Why," said she, "when I came to look at the bottle, just before dinner, I found there wasn't enough left to go round. It was too late to get any more, so I just added to it a bottle of violet toilet water. It was the same color, and it had the same smell, and I knew nobody would notice the difference. Wasn't it good?"—Washington Post.

The Jewish Torah.

Of the objects used in the Jewish synagogue one of the most interesting is the Torah scroll. The delineator describes this as parchment scroll in Hebrew, mounted on wooden rollers, wrapped in a cloth of green velvet, embroidered in silk, which is held by a silver worked belt and covered with a mantle of black velvet embroidered in gold. The upper handles of the rollers are of carved wood and the lower of ivory, with silver bells on the rollers. The Jewish Torah, or the law, is considered by the people of this race the most important and sacred portion of the Scriptures. In order that it may be kept alive in the minds of the people it is divided into as many "portions" as there are Sabbaths in the year, so that within a twelvemonth the entire book will have been read through. A manuscript copy is used, having been prepared by a professional scribe on parchment made of the skin of a clean animal—that is, one the flesh of which may be eaten.

Nourishment by Bathing.

"It is well known that the skin is a great absorbent, and nutrition even can be conveyed through its agency," said a trained nurse. "A physician once ordered a beef tea bath for a child that I was nursing who was apparently dying of some exhaustive bowel trouble and with admirable effect. And I myself have found that rubbing delicate persons with warm olive oil is an excellent tonic. If I had the charge of a puny, sickly baby, I should feel inclined to give it oil baths instead of water baths and try the effect. The oil is quite as cleansing, and it stands to reason that such tiny beings, particularly if they are badly nourished, should not have the natural oil of the body continually washed away."

Sorry He Spoke.

He was in the parlor of a St. Louis residence while his fiancée was playing a Chopin sonata on the piano. Her mother was seated almost opposite her future son-in-law, and when the proper opportunity presented itself she said:

"Don't you think Edna has a great ear for music?"

"I certainly do," replied the young man. "If you'd stretch a few strings across, it would make a lovely guitar!"

But he never finished his sentence.—New York Herald.

It All Depends.

A student long ago asked the president of Oberlin college if he could not be permitted to take a shorter course of study.

"Oh, yes," replied the president, "but that depends upon what you want to make of yourself. When God wants to make an oak, he takes a hundred years, but when he wants to make a squash he takes six months."—Instructor.

Answered.

"If a ship," began the comedian with the rose tinted beard, "is 100 feet long and 40 feet wide and its masts are 100 feet high and the boat is bowlegged, what does the captain weigh?"

"It weighs the anchor!" hoarsely shouted the audience as it grabbed the benches to prevent itself rising en masse and doing violence to the thespians.—Baltimore American.

Oriental Horseshoes.

The type of horseshoe common in the orient is a plate fitted so as to cover the entire bottom of the hoof, with a perforation in the center. The weight of the average horseshoe is three-fourths of a pound. The native smiths usually cut these plates from sheets of wrought iron and rudely shape them for the purpose in view.

The first shell was used in warfare by the sultan of Gulerat, India, in 1480.

A Good Guesser.

An elderly woman with an impediment in her speech had troubles of her own at the corner of Twelfth and Walnut streets the other day. As each car came out Walnut street she would stop it and say to the conductor, "Dud-dud-dud-does th-this kuk-kuk-car gug-gug-go?" At this juncture, and sometimes before, the conductor would impatiently exclaim, "No; take the next car." Then he would pull the strap, and the car would go ahead, leaving the woman at the crossing.

There are five different lines passing out Walnut street at this point, and if the woman could read the signs she disregarded them. Finally a conductor more considerate than the others helped her aboard and allowed her to explain afterward. After three blocks had been traversed he found that she wanted to go to Darby, and his was a Darby car. When she learned this, she beamed her joy. "Yuh-yuh-young man," she said, "yuh-yuh-you're a gug-gug-good gug-gug-guesser."—Philadelphia Record.

Turning a Sharp Corner.

On one occasion a great public dinner was given to Isaac Hull by the town of Boston, and he was asked to sit for his picture to Gilbert Stuart, the celebrated artist, who was a great braggart. When Hull visited his studio, Stuart took great delight in entertaining him with anecdotes of his English success, stories of the Marquis of This and the Baroness of That which showed how elegant was the society to which he had been accustomed.

Unfortunately in the midst of this grandeur Mrs. Stuart, who did not know that there was a sitter, came in with her apron on and her head tied up with handkerchief from the kitchen and cried out, "Did you mean to have that leg of mutton boiled or roasted?"

To which Stuart replied, with great presence of mind, "Ask your mistress."

The Pearl Hunters' Superstition.

The pearl hunters of Borneo and the adjacent islands have a peculiar superstition. When they open shells in search of pearls, they take every ninth find, whether it be large or small, and put it into a bottle which is kept corked with a dead man's finger. The pearls in the vial are known as "seed pearls" or "breeding pearls," and the native Borneo firmly believes that they will reproduce their kind. For every pearl put into the vial two grains of rice are thrown in for the pearls to "feed upon."

Some whites in Borneo believe as firmly in the superstition as the natives do, and almost every hut along the coast has its "dead finger" bottle, with from nine to fifty seed pearls and twice that number of rice grains carefully and evenly stowed away among them.

Do You Believe In Ghosts?

On the subject of ghosts the village is divided. Some people beg the question by a bold assertion that "there" ben't sich things, an' them as sez they sees 'um on'y thinks 'um does." Others, more cautious, are of opinion that "ther' med be ghostes or ther' medn't;" they had never beheld any themselves, but they knew folks who had.

The dictum of one hardy skeptic is worth quoting as an example of shrewd reasoning: "I dwun't believe in ghostes an' sich," said he. "Why should I, seein' I've niver sin nothing wusser nor meself all me life long? I looks at it this way, luk'ee, 'If sa be as they be gone to the right place 'tis sartin sure as they wun't keer to come back year agen. If sa be as they be gone to t'other, they wun't let 'um come, bless 'ee.'"—London Spectator.

Children's Play In Germany.

It is a common belief in south Germany that if children play soldiers very often in the street there is a war coming, and if they play "funeral" an epidemic will come over the land, and many deaths will result. The relator of this tells that, when a boy, he with others played "funeral" in front of the house of an old miser in his native town in Germany. The miser became much excited and exclaimed, "I will not die yet!" and made complaint to the mayor that the boys should be arrested and punished.

Considerate.

A tender hearted youth was once present at an Oxford supper, where the fathers of those assembled were being roundly abused for their parsimony in supplying the demands of their sons. At last, after having long kept silence, he lifted up his voice in mild protest. "After all, gentlemen," he said, "let us remember that they are our fellow creatures."

All Paper.

Hester—The theater is a world of enchantment. Nothing is what it seems to be.

Edith—That's so. Fred and I were at the theater t'other night, and Fred, after looking about the house, said it was all paper, and it looked like woodwork and fresco painting.—Boston Transcript.

GREWSOME RELICS.

Pathetic Memorials of the Ill Fated City of Pompeii.

In the museum at Pompeii are preserved the most horrid and pathetic relics of the last days of the ill fated city. Early in 1863 the workmen who were helping to unearth an immense palace struck into a cavity in the lava, the nature of which, of course, was a mystery. Without breaking further into it they poured plaster of paris down the crevices that were already opened, and as soon as the plaster had hardened the crust of lava was carefully removed, and, lo, the form of a human being in his last struggles was revealed! The outlines and form of the person were perfectly preserved, showing plainly that he had been buried in boiling lava, which had hardened about him. The intervening 1,800 years and the heat of the lava besides had reduced the body to a handful of dust, but the lava had left a cast natural as life.

Since that time several bodies have been reproduced, one of them with the features so perfectly preserved as to show the expression of the face. In some of the plaster casts parts of the skeleton are imbedded. Two female casts which are clasped in each other's arms have been called "The Mother and Daughter." Persons who have seen this group say that there is nothing in all Pompeii more touching than the utter despair depicted upon the face of the "mother."

Origin of the Word "Cuba."

Cuba is the name by which the island was originally known to the Lucayan Indians, who were with Columbus when he discovered it. One of its villages or cities was called by them Cubanacan, and it is reported that from the similarity of sounds Columbus, still supposing himself to be on the coast of Asia, imagined that this must be a city of Kublai Khan, the Tartar sovereign celebrated by Marco Polo. The survival of the original name for Cuba is a remarkable instance of persistence, as the island has been baptized and rebaptized many times since its European discovery. Columbus first called it Juana in honor of Prince John, the son of Ferdinand and Isabella. After Ferdinand's death it was called in his memory Fernandina. Subsequently this name was changed to Santiago, after St. James, the patron saint of Spain. Still later it was named Ave Maria, in honor of the Virgin Mary. But none of these names held, and the Indian name is still preserved.—Literary Era.

He Cornered Tilden.

Samuel J. Tilden had a touch of humor, at times querulous in its tone, and at other times he could be funny without meaning to be. He was an expert judge of wines, and his cellar was choicely stocked. When dining out, however, he had a little way of measuring by the taste of his guest and ordering accordingly. Colonel John R. Fellows noted this trait and once when dining with Mr. Tilden saw that, as usual, the Sage of Greystone had ordered a small bottle of an ordinary brand for his plate and a very choice vintage for himself. Mr. Tilden was called away from the table for a moment, and the colonel deftly shifted the bottles. When Tilden lifted his pint to pour out the wine, his eye quickly noted the difference, but he got out of the difficulty nicely. "Here, waiter," he said, "you have made a mistake in my wine. I want the same kind Colonel Fellows has."—New York World.

Music In a Barber's Shop.

If we go from the gentleman's parlor to the barber's shop of the sixteenth century, we find unmistakable evidences of the popularity of music. People would seem to have had more time in those days than now and do not appear to have minded waiting as much as brisker moderns, and so the barber provided means to amuse those who were waiting their turn. For this purpose he had the virginals in one corner, the virginal being a stringed instrument, the precursor of our piano, in which by pressing keys like our piano keys the strings were struck not by a hammer, as in our piano, but by a quill or elastic piece of wood, of leather or of metal. A virginal of Elizabeth's time is still preserved in the South Kensington museum in England.—Lippincott's.

A Great Secret.

Old Bachelor Uncle—Well, Charlie, what do you want now?

Charlie—Oh, I want to be rich.

"Rich! Why so?"

"Because I want to be petted. Ma says you are an old fool, but must be petted because you are rich. But it's a great secret, and I mustn't tell it."

Melting.

"Mr. Gallant, you are something of a student of human nature," began Miss Bewchus coyly.

"Ah, but now," he interrupted, flashing his bold black eyes upon her, "I am a divinity student."—Philadelphia Press.

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Monthly Session Wednesday An Interesting One—Simulated Insanity and Inflammation of Bones Subjects Discussed.

The County Medical Society held its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the regular presiding officer, Dr. Taulbee took the chair.

Dr. A. N. Ellis read a paper that was listened to with marked attention upon the methods of detecting simulated insanity, drawing his illustrations chiefly from facts within his own experience.

He was followed by Dr. Hunter who discussed the subject of inflammation of bones, describing three cases that had come under his own observation which perfectly illustrated the differences of method between the old surgery and the new. In the first case, a section of the thigh bone (which was exhibited to the society), five inches in length, was thrown off after a very painful and protracted inflammatory process. In the last case—a recent one—the diseased bone was thoroughly removed by Dr. Taulbee, the operation resulting in prompt recovery and in the perfect use of the limb.

A very interesting report was made by the presiding officer of his experiences and observations as delegate to the recent meeting of the American Medical Association.

After some instructive "reports of cases" the meeting adjourned.

CROP OUTLOOK.

Wheat in Many Sections About Half the Average—Tobacco Acreage Reduced. Corn Doing Well.

[Weather Bureau Bulletin June 24th.]

The week began with moderate temperature, but soon turned cooler and closed with very cold weather for the time of year. In the eastern and north-central portions of the State nearly all localities were visited by good showers, but in the west and south-central sections very little rainfall occurred. The drouth has become quite severe in several of the southern and western counties.

The wheat harvest is about completed in the western and south-central sections. The quality is very good, but the yield is light, generally being estimated at about a half crop.

The setting of tobacco was about finished during the week. The acreage is considerably less than usual, and in many localities a rather poor stand has resulted. It has been injured by grasshoppers quite severely in some places.

Although nights were too cool for rapid growth, corn has progressed well and is in a very promising condition.

Oats have improved considerably in the north-central and eastern counties, but, as a whole, will not be an average crop.

Pastures have suffered from drouth in the south and west, but the rains have greatly improved them in the east. Hay-making is in progress and only a moderate yield is reported.

Apples and pears are dropping badly and peaches are very scarce. Plums, cherries and small fruits are fairly good.

Gardens, except where injured by the drouth, are in fine condition. Irish potatoes are very promising and the early fields are being marketed.

Sorghum and hemp are doing well. A large acreage of stock peas is being sown. Farm work is well up.

KENTUCKY'S BIG CLAIM.

Republican Administration Did Nothing to Collect it, But Beckham Has Secured Its Allowance.

Mention was made this week of the fact that Kentucky's claim for interest on money furnished the Government during the Civil war, which claim amounts to $1,300,000, had been audited by the War Department and will be paid.

Gov. Beckham, Adj. Gen. Murray and Capt. Calhoun have been at work in the matter of this claim for more than a year past, and the officials are much gratified that their efforts have met with such success, from which Kentucky will reap the benefit. The money when paid will go into the general revenue fund of the State Treasury.

The movement to present Kentucky's claims for interest on the war debt was set on foot by Gov. Beckham. He conferred with Adj. Gen. Murray and then appointed Capt. Calhoun, who is a Lexington lawyer, to get the claims in shape for presentation to the War Department.

Speaking of the Kentucky claims Adj. Gen. Murray said:

During the Civil war the State of Kentucky borrowed over $1,000,000, which was used by the State in recruiting, subsisting and equipping Kentucky soldiers who served in the United States army. The principal of this debt was repaid to Kentucky, but the War Department refused to pay interest on the funds furnished by the State of Kentucky, which the State had to pay to banks and on bonds issued by the State for the purpose mentioned. The State of New York, having been refused by the War Department interest on her advancements to the Government, carried the matter to the Court of Claims. The Court of Claims affirmed the action of the War Department in part, and from the decision of the Court of Claims both the State of New York and the United States Government appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States. In 1895 the Supreme Court handed down an opinion which awarded the State this interest, but a rule of the War Department, which, by the way, seems a necessary one, is that it will not open up any claim that has been rejected. In 1899 and 1897 Congress passed resolutions extending the period of limitation and allowing the States to file their claims in the War Department for the payment of this interest. This was not done during the administration of Gov. Bradley by the State of Kentucky, but this administration rectified the claim. The present Congress has passed an act which sets at rest any doubt as to limitation, and directs the Auditor of the War Department to audit the claims of the States which have been received for interest, including Kentucky, so that the only thing incumbent upon the State of Kentucky was to prove before the Auditor of the War Department the amount of interest so paid by the State on this $1,000,000 borrowed by it from various sources during the Civil war. This we have done.

Clemens, Star Island, Put-in-Bay, Kelley Island and Sandusky, the trip taking eleven days. The Detroit Elks will entertain them at Mt. Clemens.

Taylor, at "Ingiany," was a heavy-weight on his party, and at heart they haven't much more love for him than do the Democrats. The way he hurried toward Hoosierdom, though, when the "sign was right" he would readily have passed for a lightweight. Now, Taylor, at Washington, while we are on the subject of weights, is selling twenty pounds granulated sugar for $1, and eleven pounds Arbuckle's coffee for $1, while Golden Rio still goes at ten pounds for $1.

Rev. J. J. Dickey and wife left this morning for Flemingsburg, where he will assist in conducting quarterly meeting at the M. E. Church, South. Next Sunday he will preach a memorial sermon at Fitch's Chapel, and conduct memorial services in the cemetery near the chapel's former site. This cemetery was located there 120 years ago. In the cemetery rest the remains of his father and mother, also the remains of his father's parents and his mother's parents.

MINEGO-GRAY.

Pretty Wedding Solemnized at Noon Wednesday at the Christian Church.

The marriage of Miss Nora L. Gray to Mr. John Minego was solemnized Wednesday at high noon, the Christian Church being the scene of the pretty nuptials.

The altar was decorated with palms and other potted plants, and the glow of many lights made all within the sacred edifice bright and cheery.

Mr. H. C. Curran and Mr. Earnest Daulton, of Cincinnati, a brother-in-law of the bride, officiated as ushers, and Mr. Robert Hoeflich presided at the organ.

In the absence of the minister of the church, R. E. Moss, who is engaged in a series of meetings at Paris, Tenn., the Rev. Dr. Barbour of the First Presbyterian Church performed the impressive ceremony that united the happy couple in the bonds of holy wedlock.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee B. Gray, and is one of the city's estimable young ladies. She wore an elegant gown of white organdy over satin, trimmed with ribbons and lace, with hat to match. The handsome young groom wore the conventional black.

Mr. and Mrs. Minego left on the 1:30 train for their future home at Shelby, O., where the groom is engaged in the hotel business. May their wedded life be unclouded, and their pathway strewn only with flowers, is the wish of their friends.

We are offering watches and diamonds at $10 to $15 less than our competitors. Solid silver and cut glass, the largest assortment in the city, at a sacrifice.

BRILLIANT NUPTIALS.

Wedding of Miss Mary Huston January and Mr. John Clark Rogers.

Old January Home Aglow With Lights. Fragrant With Flowers and Musical With Sweet Voices.

The marriage of Mr. John Clark Rogers and Miss Mary Huston January was solemnized last night at the home of the bride's cousin, Hon. Andrew McConnell January Cochran.

The old January home, a handsome example of colonial style, was aglow with lights, fragrant with flowers, musical with sweet voices and laughter. The guests were received by Mrs. A. M. J. Cochran, Mrs. Horace January, mother of the bride, and Mr. Andrew January, a brother of the bride. Owing to a recent bereavement in the family of Miss January the invitations to witness the marriage were limited to the members of the two families.

The Rev. Mr. Taylor, of the First Methodist Church, South, recited the ceremony. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock he led the way from the hall into the library, stopping just between two windows. He was followed by the groom with his best man, Captain Horace Cochran, a cousin of the bride, and a veteran among "best men." Then came Miss Florence Rogers, gowned in white organdy and lace, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations. She was accompanied by Mr. Mason Brown, of Frankfort. Older residents of Maysville will remember Mr. Brown's mother as the charming daughter of Judge Lysander Hord. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Lizzie Steele Andrews, alone. Her gown was of white organdy, decollete, trimmed with narrow satin ribbon. She also carried a large bunch of white carnations.

The bride entered on the arm of Judge Cochran, who gave her away. She looked extremely handsome in a gown of white swiss, with ruffles of organdy, insets of lace and satin ribbon—a triumph of art and a combination of everything that was dainty and girlish and bride-like—all beautified by a sweeping veil of tulle that softened and lent new lustre to the glowing brunette beauty of the bride. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet-peas and lilies of the valley.

Miss Lida Berry and Prof. Bullett rendered the wedding march, and during the ceremony played "Traumerie."

After the usual congratulations the health of the bride and the wealth of the groom were drunk in delicious frappe, after which the bride's cake was cut amidst many tremors on the part of the girls. The money fell to Miss Mary Alter Barbour, the ring to Miss Lizzie Steele Andrews. Mr. Andrew January was fortunate enough to get the darning needle—Luck thereby changing the decree of Providence and making an old maid of him!

The prettiest scene at the wedding was when the bride stood on the landing of the stairs and tossed her bouquet into the air. It fell into the hands of Miss May Hord, who simply must be the next bride in order to verify the superstition.

Mr. Rogers looked extremely handsome in the conventional black, and was remarkably composed, considering it was his only experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers left at 10:46 for an extended eastern tour.

The gifts from friends both near and far were remarkably handsome and beautiful. No couple married, under the old roof-tree ever passed from its doors upon whose future more cordial blessings were called down, or with more loving wishes that they might have all the happiness that this world affords.

There's a bliss beyond all that the minstrel has told.

When two that are linked in one Heavenly tie, With hearts never changing, and brow never cold.

Love on thine' all fills, and love on till they die; One hour of a passion so sacred is worth Whole ages of heartless and wandering bliss— And oh! if there be an Elysium on earth, It is this! It is this!

Miss Sallie Ball has accepted a position as stenographer at Poyntz Bros'.

Dr. J. Kinsey Smith, the well known Presbyterian minister of Louisville, left this week for a tour of Europe, accompanied by his family.

Elder Holton O. Frank has accepted the call extended him by the Somerset Christian Church, Montgomery County. He will make his home in Lexington.

A puny child is always an anxiety to the parents. There seems generally no reason why the little one should be weak when it is so well fed. But the fact is that it does not matter how much food the child takes if the stomach cannot extract the nourishment from it. No benefit can be derived from just eating. That is the condition of many a sickly child. The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition are not doing their work, and the body is really starving. It is little use to give fish foods or emulsions in such a case, because these also have to be digested; they may lighten the stomach's labor but they don't strengthen it. Strength is what the stomach needs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves and increases the action of the blood making glands. It is superior to every other preparation for children's use, on account of its body building qualities, and also because it is pleasant to the taste and contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a valuable aid when the bowels are irregular. They are small. Children take them readily.
